GERMANS PUSH DRIVE NEARER SWEDEN BORDER

Soldiers, Sailors, Marines Believed Have Landed At Several Points Along Coast

STOCKHOLM, April 15—British forces were reported today to have landed in Narvik under the protection of naval shellfire which drove the Germans from the northern Norwegian coast into the mountainous interior. The British warships which raided Narvik Saturday were said to have the town under control of their guns. This report, from the Norwegian radio at the port of Bodø, south of Narvik, followed a Norwegian army communique reporting that Norwegian troops north and west of Narvik were ready to attack the Germans. The Norwegian commander said the German forces had retreated hastily and were believed to be incapable of strong resistance to the Norwegians who, he said, are now fully mobilized in the north.

NAZI WARSHIP TORPEDOED BY BRITISH SUB

Pocket Battleship Admiral Scheer Successfully Attacked

LONDON, April 15—An admiralty communique said last night the German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer was successfully torpedoed by the British submarine Spearfish.

The admiralty communique said "Some indication of the highly successful work in extremely hazardous conditions of our submarines during the past week can now be given."

"The German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer was successfully attacked by His Majesty's submarine Spearfish in the early hours of Thursday morning, last. It is probable that the Admiral Scheer was hit by more than one torpedo."

CRUISER TORPEDOED

"H.M.S. Thrust torpedoed and sank a German cruiser, believed to be the Karlsruhe on Tuesday last. The sinking of this cruiser has already been announced and confirmed by the Germans."

"Other successes included the sinking of the following German transports and supply ships: Tanker Poseidon, 3,311 tons; August Korth, 2,500 tons; Kreta, 2,450 tons; Rind, 2,321 tons; Tonia, 3,100 tons; Andorra, 2,300 tons; Morsund, 3,200 tons."

ALSTER CAPTURED

"In addition, the Alster, of 8,514 tons, has been captured and towed to Britain. The ship was captured by the British submarine Thrust, which was also captured by the British submarine Thrust, which was also captured by the British submarine Thrust."

Rumina Bans Exports Cutting Off Nazi Supply

BUCHAREST, April 15—A Rumanian decree tonight prohibited indefinitely all exports of wheat, petroleum, coal and wood, cutting off Germany's main sources of supplies in southeastern Europe.

With the Balkans in a turmoil as the result of Germany's demand for full control over the Danube, Rumania again looms as the "hot spot" of the Balkans. If Hitler should decide to enforce his demands with armed troops, the chances are strong that he would require the opposition from Hungary, former Germany ally. In this case he would be able to drive the Germans and attack the sea. (1) In an attempt to cut Rumania off from the sea, he might come to Rumania from Jugoslavia at (A) or from the Allies, Greece and Turkey at (B).

The communique telling of the landing of British forces in Norway was said to be the first of a series of reports from the British Broadcasting Corporation. The communique said that the British forces were landed at several points along the coast of Norway.

Naval and military sources said that the landings on Norway's rugged coast, in the face of possible German opposition, were regarded as hazardous. Although it did not appear that the British forces faced any severe enemy resistance, they were believed to have been met by German forces.

Stockholm dispatches said that the Germans at Narvik—estimated to number 150—were believed to be surrounded by Norwegian troops.

ICE FREE PORT—A free port on a peninsula bounded by Beltsund on the south and Rombaksgard on the north and the terminus of the Lapland railroad leading to the harbor is through a narrow channel flanked by high cliffs that the British forces have landed.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is expected to give details of the landings in Norway to the House of Commons tomorrow.

Great Mine Field Extends From Kiel Bay To Lithuania—German Destroyers Sunk At Narvik

By J. F. SANDERSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 15.—The Royal Navy laid an unprecedented minefield far into the Baltic Sunday—a 500-mile sea death trap in the Nazi Reich's backyard—after shattering German naval forces at Narvik Saturday, sinking seven destroyers.

An admiralty announcement said the great minefield extended from Kiel Bay to Lithuania's territorial waters, blocking German access to Sweden. It was laid along the Latvia port route. Observers here said this action gives Britain control of the Baltic.

"British soldiers are coming," the Norwegian people were told last night as the Allied navy continued their drive but were promised that the minefield would be laid along the Latvia port route. Observers here said this action gives Britain control of the Baltic.

"The British Broadcasting Corporation, with the consent of the government, broadcast the message that the British navy was engaged in fighting between Germany and Norway forces in southern Norway, including the sinking of the German destroyers at Narvik today while in the north British forces were reported to have landed."

The Norwegian, meanwhile, were urged to greater efforts by their king, King Haakon VII, who last night broadcast an appeal to his people to fight on for "freedom and independence."

The king had been relatively hidden from town to town by German troops, but he was abandoned only with his government last week from an underground station where he was hiding.

Despite the hearing effort which the king's appeal was expected to bring about, the ministry's defense department said it was fighting a losing battle.

Swedish authorities announced that the German navy, including the pocket battleship Admiral Scheer, was being driven back from the coast of Norway and that the German navy was being driven back from the coast of Norway.

There were reports, however, that despite the German efforts to clear out all resistance from the coast of Norway, the German navy was being driven back from the coast of Norway.

The Royal Air Force continued its efforts to clear out all resistance from the coast of Norway, the German navy was being driven back from the coast of Norway.

Following Saturday's message that the German navy was being driven back from the coast of Norway, the German navy was being driven back from the coast of Norway.

Americas Must Be Prepared To Meet Force With Force

Roosevelt Proclaims Determination Of Western Hemisphere "To Live In Peace And Make That Peace Secure"

WASHINGTON, April 15.—President Roosevelt said today the 21 American republics could keep open the way to eventual peace "only if we are prepared to meet force with force if challenge is ever made."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke before the governing board of the Pan American Union, on the 40th anniversary of the organization's fifteenth anniversary and proclaimed a determination of the western hemisphere "to live in peace and make that peace secure."

"The President demonstrated no hesitancy by name when he used words which were clearly directed at recent European developments."

"We of this hemisphere have no need to seek a new international order, we already have found it when we have found it in the Americas, or violent movements of troops."

"We did not stamp out nations, capture governments, or uproot independent people from the homes they had built. We did not invent abstract doctrines of race supremacy, or claim dictatorship through universal influence."

MEN OF GOOD WILL—"The American republic was not built by hatred and terror. It has been built by the endless and effective work of men of good will."

Mr. Roosevelt said "universal and stable peace remains a dream, and told his listeners to 'have no illusions' at a time when 'mad dreams of universal empire are again rampant.'"

"In my conception," the president said, "the whole world now is struggling to find the base of its life in coming centuries."

"We hear," he said, "of men who claim the right to 'master' the world. We hear of men who insist on the right to 'rule' the world. We hear of men who insist on the right to 'rule' the world."

"All of this is not of mere academic interest. We know that what happens in the world today is a struggle for the life of the world. We know that what happens in the world today is a struggle for the life of the world."

VENGEANCE EXACTED BY ANGLO SUB

LONDON, April 15.—It was the Admiralty's assertion, the British submarine Spearfish has torpedoed the German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer, the 6,000-ton vessel, which has evaded evasive action for its attack early in the war when in a raid on Heligoland naval base, its port was blown away. The Spearfish had its radio wrecked and its engine room disabled by depth charges.

As the depth charges were dropped, the submarine emerged in the bottom. There were numerous explosions, and the 40-man crew organized a scramble. In one instance, a depth charge struck the ship, and the submarine was driven to the surface, to find a destroyer coming in its rear.

Continued British naval and air attacks against the German navy, including the sinking of the German destroyers at Narvik today while in the north British forces were reported to have landed.

WAR SYSTEM DISLOCATION OF ECONOMY

Dictatorships Mobilize For War In Peace Times, Cromwell Says

MONTREAL, April 15.—The system of autocracy was described here today by J. H. B. Cromwell, United States minister to Canada, as a "system of mobilizing war materials, under the camouflage of social security, in times of peace."

Addressing the Canadian Club, Mr. Cromwell said that in a large part of the world this system already has caused "a vast dislocation of economic effort."

"It has caused a vast dislocation of industry and labor and it has done little or nothing for the achievement of prosperity and human welfare," Mr. Cromwell continued.

"Nor has it been without effect on the great democratic nations, because the existence in one country of a system of war economy endures a war economy upon other countries which must be prepared to defend themselves against aggression."

BLINDNESS WORSE
"That is bad enough," said Mr. Cromwell, "but I think blindness to the facts would be even worse."

"For that reason, said Mr. Cromwell, he believed that the continuance of the great experiment in democracy in North America must not be endangered by any irresponsible step on either side which unduly circumstances: free flow of trade or which tends to place industry in a straight jacket, and which involves in its consequences more and more industrial control with corresponding loss of opportunity for initiative, for freedom, and for enterprise."

Discussing the "apparent" success of state regimentation, Mr. Cromwell said there were, however, many who believe it desirable to erect such a system within the framework of the democratic institutions of North America.

EXPLAIN FAILURE
"They believe that the recurrent depression can be eliminated by a rigid government control of both production and of distribution. They endeavor to attribute the failure of the several experiments to our system of government."

"Their very act of explaining away this failure answers the question of whether such a system would work in North America—and in the result, it does not. Indeed, it will not work with us," Mr. Cromwell said.

"It had been claimed, he added, that various countries had been forced into the use of economic regimentation—either by lack of raw materials at home or by inability to purchase them abroad."

ENJOY PROSPERITY
"Yet many small countries—some with and some without colonies—enjoyed a full measure of prosperity under the beneficent regime of a free competitive economy."

"This would seem to indicate that the actual government of the source of raw materials, whether in the home country or in colonies, is not in itself a guaranty of prosperity."

Turning to the question of trade

NORWAY KING IS TARGET OF NAZI AIRMEN

LONDON, April 15.—The Norwegian government was said officially last night to have informed the British government that "German aircraft evidently have orders to attack the King of Norway personally, as they are bombing each successive place he stays in."

The foreign office statement added that "this action follows the refusal of King Haakon to negotiate in person with the German minister at Oslo."

Mr. Cromwell said that Canada and the United States have "joined together in pointing out a new way to the restoration of peace and constructive international trade."

"Nowhere are the beneficial results of Liberal policies as applied to international trade more readily apparent than in the recent history of Canadian-American trade relations."

Fortunately, he added, the governments and peoples on both sides of the border "sincerely rejected the panacea so plausibly presented by the proponents of economic nationalism."

"The barren accomplishments of those who sought to restrict foreign trade through regimentation, the application of restrictive tariffs, and embargoes and by the use of artificial trade restraints were so evident that these methods now have little appeal to North America."

War Briefs

LONDON, April 15.—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Gothenburg, Sweden, said that dispatches received there from Norway reported all traffic over the Norwegian-Swedish border had been stopped and the Norwegian-Scandinavian relationship threatened.

NEW YORK, April 15.—William C. Kerker, National Broadcasting Company correspondent in Berlin, broadcast at 4 a.m. M.S.T. today that officials in the German embassy in Amsterdam had started to turn all political documents.

British United Press TOKYO, April 15.—Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita said today that Japan would be "deeply concerned by any development in the European war affecting the interests of the Dutch East Indies."

These also were pursued and destroyed.

"Parties of men, possibly German soldiers, have been seen attacking the destroyers over the hills, and further details are awaited."

"The destruction of seven of the enemy destroyers was not achieved without some loss. Three British destroyers were damaged in the fight, but not seriously, and the British line of life is believed to have been very small."

NO ESTIMATE
"No estimate can be made at present of German losses in personnel, but the seven destroyers sunk must have counted over 1,000 men."

The Admiralty has signaled congratulations to Commander-in-Chief Sir Charles Forbes, to Vice Admiral Whitehead, and to the officers and men engaged in this vigorous, daring and skillfully conducted action, which may well tend to clarify the situation on this part of the Norwegian coast."

An Admiralty communiqué said that two officers and 11 men were killed when the crew of the destroyer Hardy landed from their disabled and beached war vessel in the first battle of Narvik last Wednesday. Two other men were missing and believed drowned, and six men were wounded.

Captain R. W. Warburton-Lane, who led the flotilla to the attack, was reported killed.

The Hardy was disabled by German guns and was run ashore by her own crew before they landed.

Arthur Greenwood, Labor member of parliament, voiced a popular sentiment in a London address in which he said Hitler has "put a dagger at his naked throat" in the Scandinavian invasion.

Mr. Greenwood added that the BRITISH COMING

"British soldiers are coming to assist the Norwegian people in their resistance to the invaders. Wherever British soldiers are, assist them by every means in your power. If you know where there are German troops, report them to the British authorities. If you know food, feed them. If they require shelter, give it to them."

"The British navy is now mining the Baltic Sea, according to a London broadcast."

The most significant development of the week-end was the landing of the new minefield which clearly demonstrated, observers said, that the German navy has been forced to the Baltic Sea.

Through the last war Germany held the key to the Baltic.

The Admiralty pointed out that the new minefield extends as far south as Kiel Bay.

Here the Admiralty's rainy-weather story of the Narvik battle was confirmed by the fact that German destroyers in Narvik on Wednesday by the second destroyer flotilla, this flotilla, with reinforcements, had been blocking the enemy in Narvik.

ADVANCED UP FJORD
"This morning at about noon H.M.S. Warspite, accompanied by a strong force of destroyers, using minesweeping and other appliances, advanced up the fjord to attack the German destroyers, some of them already damaged, who were sheltering in the harbor, and also to engage any shore batteries which might have been erected."

According to reports which have been received from the commander-in-chief, Vice Admiral Whitehead, the British flag in the Warspite, commanded by Sir Charles Forbes, was extremely successful.

"Enemy positions were not found to be so formidable as had been reported, and the British line of life is believed to have been very small."

Swedish Guns Shoot Down 2 German Planes

STOCKHOLM, April 15.—Two German planes were shot down by Swedish anti-aircraft batteries today after they had crossed into Swedish territory and ignored warning shots from the batteries.

Three German planes flew across the frontier and batteries at Storungen opened up on them. One escaped but a second was hit and crashed into a mountain side and the third fell close to Grönsjö.

The only true swarming bird found in considerable numbers in North America is the white-faced gull.

Swedes might be proved to have independent small state in Europe that there is no safety in continued warfare and that it would be better for them in their own interests to come into this fight with us now."

towns of Zevenaker, Lillestrom, Rensaker, Hovfoss and Sidsvold. German troops also were reported to have occupied Elverum, which is about 25 miles from Oslo and north and slightly to the east of Lake Mjøsa. This village, where the government stopped temporarily after abandoning Oslo, was said to be in ruins, with scarcely a wall standing.

The villages of Hamar and Gjøvik on the northern shores of Lake Mjøsa were bombed intermittently by German warplanes, and the area was virtually abandoned by its civilian population.

Swedish correspondents reported there had been heavy fighting last night near Skarso, about 40 miles northeast of Oslo and 20 miles from the Swedish frontier.

Proclamations signed by General von Falkenberg, Nazi military commander, were posted in all German-occupied areas announcing establishment of martial law.

The proclamations urged the Norwegians to lay down their arms, and said that all who resisted by arms would be sentenced to death "without mercy."

Passengers Removed
TOKYO, April 15.—One hundred German passengers aboard the Japanese freighter City of Los Angeles were removed to safety after the vessel ran aground off Yokohama harbor.

A meeting of the property committee of the Edmonton United States freighter City of Los Angeles was held in the Civic Club Tuesday evening. The meeting was postponed until a later date.

K. O. CAVALIER

By Jerry Bronfield

CAPT. OF CHARACTERS
VAL DOUGLAS, a sports writer, slipped on a fragrant to find EDDIE CAVALIER, a prize fighter, headed for the life line. A crowd CAPTAIN STEVE HANSEN—skipper of the life line—was CAPTAIN KELSO—Cavalier's manager.

YESTERDAY, Val made headlines more interested in the prize fighter than in the prize of the substitution of Cavalier as Eddie's opponent. He wants to rush back to the transaction but Eddie insists they go back on the fragrant.

CHAPTER XVII
Duffy Keag was almost apoplec-tic. "You're kidding me, kid—you mean what the matter, kid—you may be something!"

Things were happening almost too fast for Val Douglas to follow.
"I know exactly what I'm doing," Eddie replied calmly. "Don't you worry. I'll be back with you in a minute. You'll see I'm going to rush back right now." Reggie and the white fight mob were getting panicky. They were a little worried about taking back on the fragrant.

"They knew we intended to come back the same way we came up.
I'll look awful funny to change our plan just because we go against a substitute."

"Look, Eddie," Duffy pleaded. "I never went to college and I ain't got at this psychology business.
Let me handle this from now on in Eddie. We done well, so far.
Ain't I been like a father to you?"

Eddie smiled. "Sure, Duffy. Sure.
But I know I'm right. Don't worry about anything. Not even Corky Bragg."

"He's got the right stuff," Duffy said. "I'll surrender. 'Gonna that settles it. Every time that game wins the dinner on an idea it takes two years off my life."

"Looks like a nice little town," Eddie observed when they came up the dock after noon. Darky had just fallen and the lights of the city shined cheerfully. "Well, he inquired. 'What are we going to do?'"
"What do you mean?" Val asked, surprised.

He nodded toward shore. "Might as well give old terra firma a whirl again. How about a walk around town?"

"Sure," Eddie accepted with alacrity. She didn't mention that she'd previously accepted Captain Hansen's invitation to the same thing.
Well, Steve wasn't mind.

Fifteen minutes later they were swinging off down the dock. "We're not including anything until tomorrow morning," Eddie said.
"Steve wants everything landing in daylight, especially that mining machine."

"Sure," Eddie said. "He's doubling the watch tonight."

"What does he expect—someone to walk off with the ship?"
"From what I know of the situation, it isn't so funny."

One of the first things she wanted to do was get some newspapers.
She wound up with several and standing under a street light, she turned lazily to the sport pages.

"Here it is," she chorused. "And look at it splashed all over the page, would you?" It was her story on the rescue of the previous night.
"Come to think of it," she murmured, "this is page one stuff if anything else was."

She looked up and saw the stony, immobile expression on Eddie's face.
Val loved the papers and the continuous refuse can without a further word. They walked on silently for another block. She could just about read his mind. He probably preferred to forget the whole thing.

"Tired?" he asked about an hour later. "No, but I've walked up my appetite again. Get the prize man with you?"

"Just about," he grinned. "Better not order lettuce with it, though."

They strolled into a little tavern on Victoria street and sat down at a booth.

"Toasted cheese and coffee," she said to the waiter.

"Sure," Eddie said.

They were only half through when a man entered and walked quickly to a booth a little in back of them. There was something far-away in his eyes. Val's attention immediately.

"The bells in the main hall is a low volume but not so soft for Val to catch it. She clutched regula arm and muttered for a minute.

There were two men in the other booth. They walked out quickly with the man who brought the news.
Val said, "Did you hear what he said?" she said excitedly. "What business was it of his? Who is I wonder?" She grabbed Eddie by the arm again. "Come on, we're going to follow them."

"You're hasty," he told her. "Just before one guy tells another that a ship is in port, he wants for you to pull a Scotland Yard act."

"I'll go alone then," she flamed, and strode toward the door.

He sprang after her, paid the check and followed her out the door.

"All right, bloodhound, which way did they go and what do you expect to find out?"

She nodded across the street.
"There they go. I haven't even got a good buzz yet. I'm warm for the Northern Belle is concerned, so am I."

They followed the trio for two blocks. One of the men went into a drug store while the others waited outside. From across the street Val and Eddie could see the man making a telephone call. He was out again in a minute and all three waited until a fourth man joined them.

"Reinforcement," Val muttered.
"New" Eddie replied. "Just a fourth for bridge."

The four men walked rapidly

Rev. Mr. Thompson Says
